

Graduate Program
in Economics

Course: POLITICAL ECONOMY
Faculty: ENRIQUETA ARAGONES
Term: Fall
E-mail: enriqueta.aragones@iae.csic.es
Web page: <http://aragones.iae-csic.org/idea.htm>
Office Hours: upon request

Description: This course is devoted to the study of political decision-making. Topics include: elections and voting, political equilibrium, political participation and agenda-setting; politician behavior; signaling, credibility and reputation; government efficiency; basic distributive politics; basic legislative models; and political agency.

Objective: Understand real world political phenomena using the tools of Economic Analysis and Game Theory.

Outline:

References: Political Game Theory by Nolan McCarty and Adam Meirowitz (2007) Cambridge University Press.

Grading: Each student will have to do an in class presentation of a paper from a reading list. In addition, each student will have to write a short research proposal.